

Email – 1 :

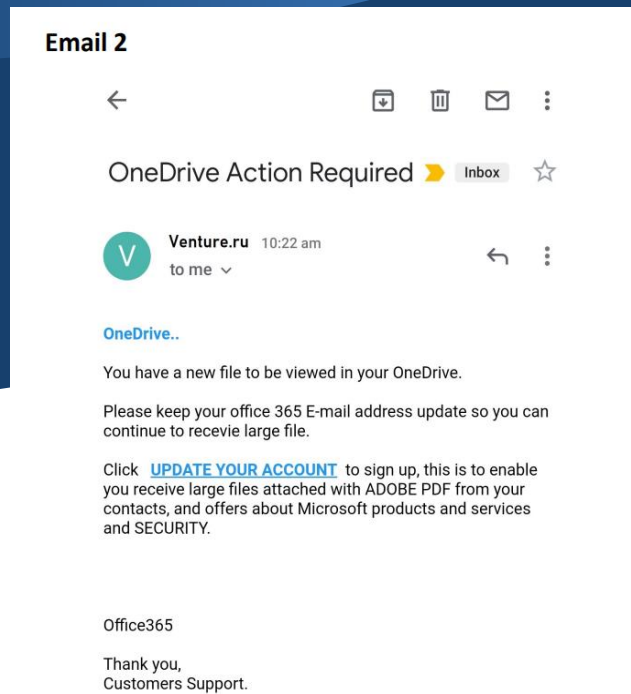

Email 1

Email 1:

Is this email Safe or Malicious?	My Analysis
Safe	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• The conversation between 2 Friend revolves around the new trailers released at Game Con. They discuss their excitement, impressions, and opinions about the trailers.• No URLs or attachments were sent during the conversation.• The conversation appears to be a casual discussion between two friends who are familiar with each other• The conversation does not indicate any signs of social engineering or malicious intent.• No suspicious activities or information exchange were detected during the conversation• According to me this email is Safe.

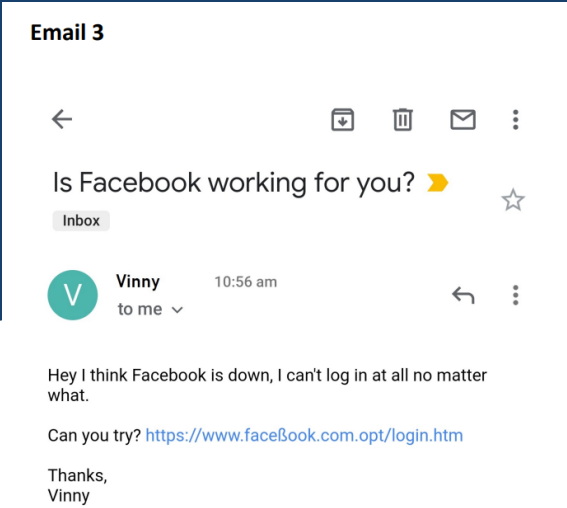

Email-2:

Email 2:

Is this email Safe or Malicious?	My Analysis
Malicious	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• We Cannot say the authenticity of the sender cannot be confirmed based solely on the sender's name. Further investigation is Need to Validate.• The email creates a sense of urgency by stating that action is required to continue receiving large files. This tactic is commonly employed in social engineering attacks to prompt recipients into taking immediate action without thorough consideration.• The email mentions offers related to Microsoft products and services and security. However, the inclusion of these offers in a request for account update raises suspicions regarding the legitimacy of the email.• The Hidden URL is Attached.• Due to Some presence of grammatical errors and inconsistent capitalization it makes this email more Malicious.• According to me this email is Mailcious

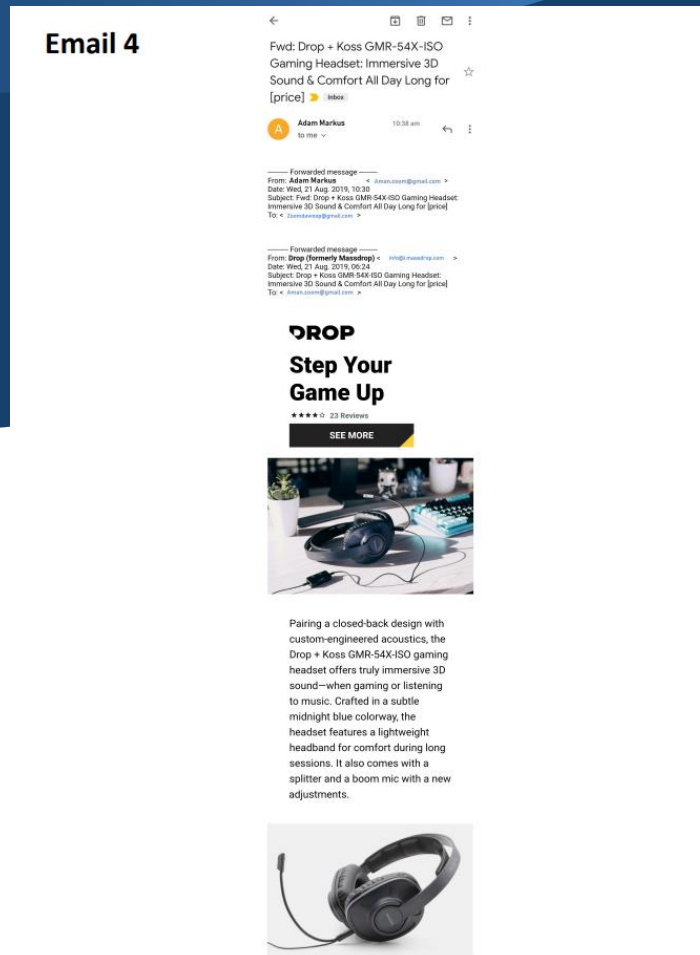

Email-3:

Email 3:

Is this email Safe or Malicious?	My Analysis
Malicious	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• We Cannot say the authenticity of the sender cannot be confirmed based solely on the sender's name. Further investigation is Need to Validate.• The email implies that Facebook is experiencing issues and requests the recipient to try accessing it through a provided link. This tactic is commonly employed in social engineering attacks to prompt recipients into taking immediate action without thorough consideration.• The email includes a suspicions link , is not a legitimate Facebook URL. This raises concerns about the intention behind the link and its potential to lead to a phishing or malicious website.• According to me this email is Mailcious

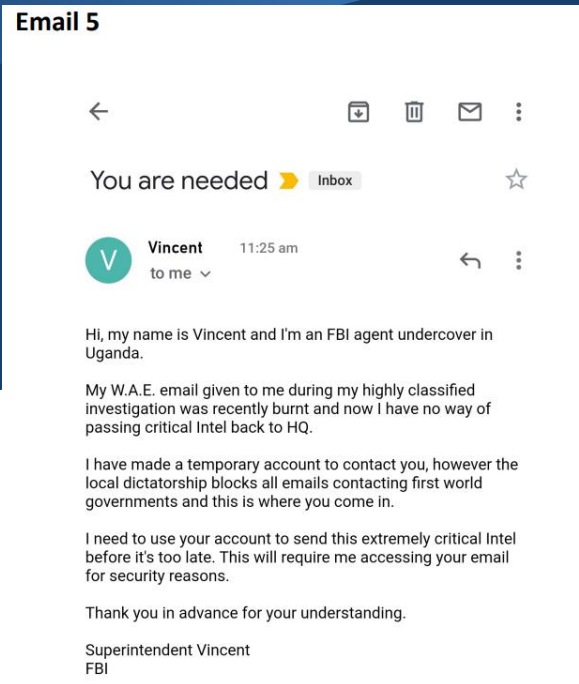

Email-4:

Email 4:

Is this email Safe or Malicious?	My Analysis
Safe	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• The email contains a forwarded message So it is a Product promotions , The information provided seems to be related to a legitimate product.• The email includes a link labeled "SEE MORE" that is presumably intended to provide more information about the gaming headset. However, without further investigation, the safety and legitimacy of the link cannot be determined.• The email does not exhibit clear indicators of being malicious.• However, the safety and legitimacy of the included link cannot be determined without further investigation

Email-5:

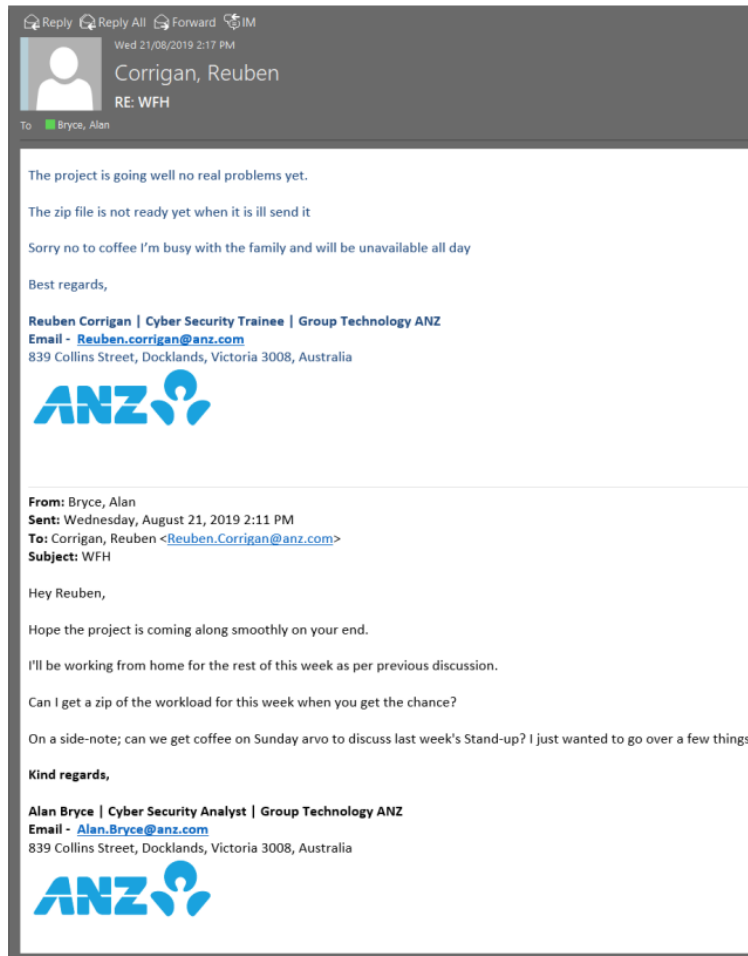

Email 5:

Is this email Safe or Malicious?	My Analysis
Malicious	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The email claims to be from someone named "Vincent" who identifies themselves as an FBI agent undercover in Uganda. However, the authenticity of the sender's identity cannot be confirmed based solely on the information provided. • The email creates a sense of urgency by stating that critical intelligence needs to be sent before it's too late. It requests the recipient to provide access to their email account for security reasons. This tactic is commonly employed in social engineering attacks to manipulate recipients into granting unauthorized access. • The email describes a highly unusual and potentially suspicious situation involving a supposed undercover FBI agent and the need to use the recipient's email account due to government restrictions. Such scenarios often raise concerns about the credibility and legitimacy of the email. • According to me this email is Malicious

Email-6:

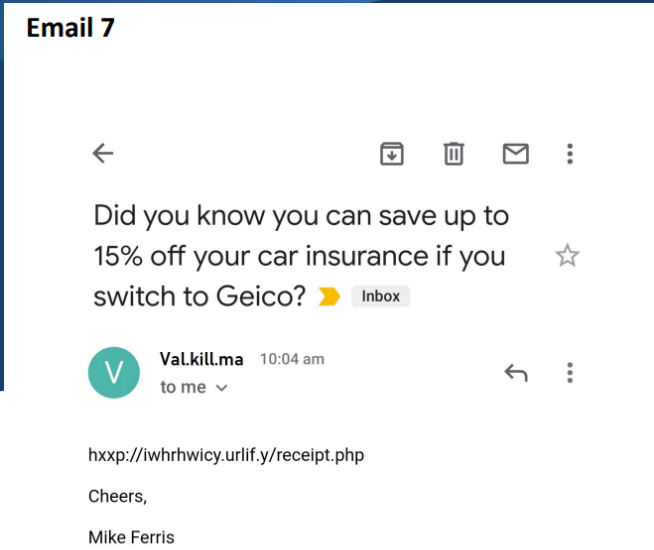

Email 6

Email 6:

Is this email Safe or Malicious?	My Analysis
Safe	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• The email appears to be a genuine communication between Reuben Corrigan and Alan Bryce. The email addresses and the sender's job title align with the context of the conversation.• The email exchange discusses work-related matters, including the progress of a project, a request for a zip file. The conversation seems to be focused on legitimate work-related topics and does not contain any clear indications of malicious intent.• The email exchange appears to be a legitimate communication between colleagues discussing work-related matters• So According to me this email is Safe.

Email-7:

Email 7:

Is this email Safe or Malicious?	My Analysis
Malicious	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• The email includes a link labeled "hxxp://whrhwicy.urlif.y/receipt.php." The unusual formatting of the link and the presence of non-standard characters indicate a potential attempt to deceive or redirect recipients to malicious websites.• The email is from an unidentified sender named "Valkillma." The lack of sender identification raises concerns about the credibility and legitimacy of the email.• The email promotes switching to Geico for potential car insurance savings without any prior engagement or affiliation with the recipient. Unsolicited promotional emails can be indicative of spam or phishing attempts.• So According to me this email is Malicious